SHE'S A DREAM

(The copyright laws protect this selection. It is illegal to copy this script by any means.)

You never know what life has in store for you.

You are looking at a very simple person. Let me rephrase that. My life used to be simple ... then she came into my life. I guess she had always been at school although I've not seen her at after school detention ... but ... we are in the same class and sit near each other. I just never noticed her before.

Her name is Sharon. One day she just ... just came into focus. I think it was the transition in class from adverbs to Robert Frost poetry. It was like someone had hit me with a lightning-charged cattle-prod ... whatever that is. As I looked at her, really for the first time, I was mentally transported to a field, and we were running toward each other in slow motion. (looks above the audience, toward the horizon; spreads arms wide as if running in slo-mo) I saw that field ... her running towards me, her long stringy hair bouncing off her shoulders, the sun glistening off her braces as she smiles. I knew, after searching my entire life, I had found (looks directly at audience.) ... love.

Then, reality returned. I wanted to say something poetic to her ... maybe from a Robert Frost poem. I knew I had but a brief moment in eternity, so I said the only thing that came to mind. I looked deep into her eyes and said, (holds hand up and slightly
